Presenting our partner

Kyrö – Finnish rye whisky born in a sauna

Kyrö was founded by five friends with a shared passion for rye and a simple question: why wasn't anyone making Finnish rye whisky? The idea was born in a sauna, as many good ideas are, and in 2012 the friends set out to turn it into reality.

A staple of Finnish food and culture for centuries, rye gives Kyrö whisky its unmistakable character and a strong connection to its northern origin. During the short growing season, almost round-the-clock daylight helps pack flavour into every grain. At the distillery, Kyrö's refined methods bring out the signature notes of spice, sweetness and rich rye bread.

What began as a shared ambition among friends has grown into an internationally recognised distillery, with Kyrö whiskies, gins and other spirits receiving awards around the world. While waiting for their first whisky to mature, the founders created Kyrö Napue Gin – later named the world's best gin for gin and tonic at the International Wine and Spirit Competition in the UK. Through it all, the philosophy has stayed the same: exceptional ingredients and a path of their own.

Today, Kyrö offers a distinctly Finnish take on whisky: bold yet approachable, rooted in rye and shaped by its origin. It's a small piece of Finland, made to be enjoyed together.

Kyrö found its home in the small village of Isokyrö, where the distillery was built inside a former dairy.
